

2018 ALUMNI AWARDS

NOMINATIONS FOR The University of Queensland Alumnus of the Year

Do you or your colleagues know of someone who should be considered for the UQ Alumnus of the Year Award?
If so, please submit your nomination for this person.

The UQ Alumnus of the Year Award recognises and honours the achievements of outstanding graduates of The University of Queensland who have achieved distinction in their chosen field.

The Award

The UQ Alumnus of the Year should be a person whose distinguished achievements have brought national and/or international recognition to The University of Queensland and in whose development The University of Queensland has had a significant role.

All graduates of The University of Queensland are eligible for nomination. Consideration is given to two key criteria:

- Undergraduate or postgraduate academic record at The University of Queensland – including all degrees and diplomas (including level of award where applicable), and details of significant prizes and/or scholarships (including the award of a University Medal, if applicable); and
- Distinguished career – relevant evidence may include positions held, overall career achievements, and/or national and international awards, community service recognised by Australian, international or other honours. Priority is given to those active in their chosen field within the private and public sectors.
